THE STOLEN TELEGRAM.

Hunting Down a Petty Thief.

[From the New York Tribune]

Yesterday's Associated Press dispatches gave a letter from the United States Attorney in Washington showing that there is no law there to punish a telegraph operator who steals a despatch. Yesterday afternoon we received the following from the Vice-President and General Manager of the Western Union Telegraph Company:

EXECUTIVE OFFICE
WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH CO,
NEW YORK March 7, 1882

WHITELAW REID, Esq, Editor New York Tribune

DEAR SIR We have endeavored to investigate the facts in connection with the surreptitious publication of a despatch sent by you last April over our wires to the Hon. John Hay, then Assistant Secretary of State, in Washington, D C, having recognized at once that the circumstances tended to discredit our service We have taken great pains and incurred considerable expense in the past to protect the confidence of our customers, and they may always rely on us to exhaust all the means at our command to that end. Heretofore, however, we have needed to defend our despatches from attempts to get at them from the outside; rarely, if ever we are proud to say, from treachery among our own employes

In tracing the present case we have sent trusted officers in various directions, and made sufficient investigation to warrant the belief that a copy of the despatch was improperly retained, at the time of its transmission, by an employe of the Washington office, who has not been in our employ for several months and under the rules of the company will not again be employed unless unexpected and conclusive evidence should be produced causing a reversal of our present judgment

We deeply regret to find that the District of Columbia, unlike almost every State and even Territory in the Union, has no law to punish this crime—a crime which strikes at the very root of our business, tending to demoralize our employes and destroy the justly earned confidence of the public. We ask your influence and that of the press and public generally to aid in securing the speedy passage of a proper statute on the subject.

I send you herewith the original despatch, the copy delivered in Washington, and the affidavits taken in the case.

Yours truly,
THOS T ECKERT, Gen'l Manager

The affidavits and other evidence (little of which was presented to the District-Attorney when it was found that stealing was no crime in the District, if done by a telegraph operator) make out an interesting case. The stolen despatch in itself contained little to warrant the late hubbub With the exception of one or two personal references, only to be understood in the light of facts equally known to the gentlemen concerned and to the President, but unknown to the public, there was absolutely nothing in it which the writer had not said over and over again, editorially, in the Tribune It was, however, precisely the sort of thing which a small-minded Conkling sympathizer might think useful in alienating one of the President's Cabinet, and recalling Conkling support.

Mr Corkhill, in considering how the despatch was betrayed, enumerates five points of possible leakage. Let us see how many of these the evidence stops.

(1) "Mr Reid's amanuensis may have made a copy of it" In this case Mr. Reid employed no amanuensis. The original is in his own handwriting, it went direct from him to the operator.

(2) "It may have been copied in the telegraph office in New York." The operator who sent it—a person of the best record, honest and ingenuous—swears that it was not. Here are two affidavits from him—the first giving his general recollections on the subject when questioned by the Western Union authorities about it, and the second his recollections after he had been allowed to see the original from which he sent the despatch

William J. Byrne, now a telegraph operator in the main office of the Western Union Telegraph Company at Pittsburg, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

That he was the telegraph operator employed in the Tribune Office in New York, in March and April, 1881; as such he transmitted the recently published message from Whitelaw Reid to Colonel Hay, in March, 1881, that he made no copy of it, and never even re-read it; that after transmission he immediately returned it to Mr. Reid in a sealed envelope, marked and addressed in accordance with the regular custom of the Tribune Office as to Mr Reid's messages; and that he never in any way communicated its contents or any part of them. He recalls no peculiar circumstances attending the transmission beyond the special care always given to the business on that wire, and he does not even remember, or now know, what operator in Washington received the message

WILLIAM J BYRNE.

Sworn to before me, this 28th day of February, 1882.

WILLIAM BARKER,
Notary Public, N. Y. Co.

William J. Byrne, being duly sworn, deposes and says.

That since making an affidavit on the 28th of February last concerning a despatch transmitted by him from the Tribune Office in New York to Colonel John Hay in Washington, in March, 1881, he has been shown what he recognizes as the original copy of that despatch. He remembers the copy and recognizes the marks which, in accordance with his uniform custom, he made upon it at the time. From these marks he finds that it was not received in Washington, as he had supposed, by one of the regular operators in the Tribune's Washington Office, but by an operator known to him as "Hu," or "Hutch," with whom he had no acquaintance, but whom he understood then to be the night manager or assistant night manager of the main office of the American Union Telegraph Company in Washington. He now remembers that on the night in question the Tribune Office in Washington was closed before this despatch was given him for transmission; that he therefore asked the main office if they could receive it, and "Hu" agreed to do so; that he asked him to deliver it that night, which "Hu" thought could not be done, but promised that he would see that it was delivered at the Tribune's Washington Office early in the morning. Deponent had no other conversation on the subject except that "Hu" or "Hutch" complained that it was a long message.

WILLIAM J. BYRNE.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 1st day of March, 1882.

WILLIAM BARKER,
Notary Public, N. Y. Co.

The original went, as we have seen, direct from Mr. Reid to the operator, and went back from the operator direct to Mr Reid. It was then placed with other private papers, securely under lock and key, and had obviously been undisturbed from that hour until the publication.

3 "Or it might have been surreptitiously duplicated" from Colonel Hay's copy But Colonel Hay's affidavit seems to close that leak:

Before me, Samuel A Raymond, a notary public in and for the County of Cuyahoga and State of Ohio, in the City of Cleveland, State and County aforesaid, on the 6th day of February, 1882, appeared John Hay, who is personally known to me, who, being duly sworn, deposes and says

On the 28th of March, 1881, I received in the city of Washington, where I was then residing as Assistant Secretary of State, a telegraphic despatch signed Whitelaw Reid, which was substantially the same as the one printed in the New York Tribune of January 7, 1882. I took the despatch to the Executive Mansion, and there read it to President Garfield, he and I being alone in the library He did not read the despatch himself nor take it in his hands. I did not leave it with him; it was never for a moment in his possession I have never since communicated it to any one, until after its publication, when on the 12th of January, 1882, I sent it by mail to Mr. Whitelaw Reid. While it was in my possession I kept it carefully locked up with other private papers, and to the best of my knowledge and belief no one, except myself, ever had an opportunity of reading it from the time when it left the telegraph office until I sent it to Mr. Reid.

JOHN HAY

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 6th day of February, 1882, in the City of Cleveland. In testimony whereof I hereunto set my hand and official seal

S A. RAYMOND, Notary Public.

The facts in this affidavit are in accord with Colonel Hay's uniform methods. So singularly scrupulous is he about such papers that, as Mr Blaine has recently stated, though sitting in the next room to him then in the State Department, in constant intercourse, and in full accord on this subject, Colonel Hay never once mentioned this despatch to him, neither did General Garfield, and Mr Blaine says that he never saw the despatch or heard of it, until it was read to him from the Herald

When the leaks thus far are stopped, the search seems to be getting pretty close So somebody evidently thought, for when it began to be suspected that an investigation was in progress the story was suddenly started, with the obvious view of confusing the scent, that Colonel Rockwell, one of President Garfield's closest personal friends, and a highly honorable Army officer, was the culprit A person very close to the original publication first went about New York whispering this, and within a week the story appeared in sympathizing sheets at the West. Colonel Rockwell disposed of it in the following card, which he forwarded at once for publication:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2, 1882.

To the Editor of the Tribune

SIR My attention has been called to the fact that I am charged, "on good authority," with being the "friend of the late President" who furnished the New York Herald with the telegram from Whitelaw Reid.

Permit me to say that it is not true, my first knowledge of the existence of the despatch referred to coming to me with its reading in the columns of the Herald

Very truly yours,
A F. ROCKWELL

(5) There remains only one of Mr. Corkhill's five leaks. He says the despatch might have been stolen in transit Hardly. Consider the circumstances. It was after midnight. Few operators are left on duty—so few that the night manager in Washington has to receive the message It is not probable that anybody was listening, impossible, if he were, that, with his attention suddenly arrested by something he heard, he should have taken down a long message rapidly transmitted, beginning with the very first word and adhering to it without a break to the end. There was no warning that the message coming was anything special A casual listener might have caught its significance after two or three sentences, and begun making notes But this itself began with the first word on the first line It was a long despatch, covering ten pages, and he had every line of it It was transmitted with admirable accuracy, a comparison of the Washington copy with the original shows that even the punctuation corresponds From this the stolen copy varies in numerous, but mostly slight, particulars—the errors being such as a stenographer would make in taking a hurried copy of a manuscript before him The despatch was sent with only the initials of the writer. The Washington operator wrote out the name in full The thief did the same. But it was not stolen from the press copy in the office, because the condition of the manuscript shows that no press copy was taken, and on the office files of that date there is neither a copy nor a sign that one had been abstracted.

The thief has been very nearly located. The original story that President Garfield gave out the despatch is a foolish fiction, for President Garfield never had it. The story that Colonel Rockwell gave it out is equally foolish, for Garfield, never having had it, could neither have shown it nor left it among his papers. And besides, the Colonel has spoken. There were, as Mr. Corkhill justly observed, just five ways in which it could have got out But the evidence closes every one of them. It was not given out by Mr. Reid's amanuensis It was not given out by the New York operator. It was not stolen from the original, filed here among undisturbed private papers, securely locked. It was not stolen from Colonel Hay. It was not stolen, by a casual listener, from the wires.

It was stolen by a man who saw the use he could make of it then with the Conkling faction It was so used, and used at once Within forty-eight hours after its receipt in Washington the substance of it was carried by a newspaper correspondent, whose name and letters are preserved, to a high official from that day, it was in the market, and the man who rattled about it made no secret of the fact that it had been stolen from the telegraph office.

There were just two men who could steal it. One was the man who received it, the other was the man who sat a few yards distant, at the short loop on the same private wire. One was "Hu," "Hutch," J. A. Hutchinson, then the night manager of the main office in Washington, now a confidential stenographer and telegraph operator in the employment of H. D. Cooke & Co., and often a small dealer in news. The other is Guthridge, the late operator for the Washington office of The Cincinnati Gazette, which had the only loop on this wire. Whichever one of these clears himself, convicts the other. We judge from their letter that the Western Union Company already have a pretty definite opinion as to which ought to be convicted. So have we.

Mr. Corkhill very justly says that the copy was certainly procured by a gross violation of faith on the part of some one, but he can find no law in the District to punish him. It is lucky for the criminal that he did not commit his act in New York, or he would probably have gone to the workhouse Here is the New York statute, and nearly every State has a similar one:

L. 1850, Ch. 340, S. 1. As amended, L. 1867, Ch. 871. 7 Edm 197. 48.

Any person connected with any telegraph company in this State, either as clerk, operator, messenger, or in any other capacity, who shall wilfully divulge the contents, or the nature of the contents, of any private communication intrusted to him for transmission or delivery, or who shall wilfully refuse or neglect to transmit or deliver the same, shall, on conviction before any court, be adjudged guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall suffer imprisonment in the county jail or workhouse in the county where such conviction shall be had, for a term of not more than three months, or shall pay a fine not to exceed five hundred dollars, at the discretion of the court; and any person who shall wilfully, by connivance with any clerk, operator, messenger, or other employe of any telegraph company, or otherwise wilfully and wrongfully obtain, or attempt to obtain, any knowledge of any telegraphic message or despatch, communication or communications, while the same shall be in course of transmission, without first having the assent and authority of some person having the right to give such assent and authority, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall, upon conviction, be punished by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars, or imprisonment for not more than three months, or both such fine and imprisonment.

There was nothing in the stolen despatch that was not true, and proper to be said at that time and under the circumstances then existing. Its publication has done us no harm and given us no concern. If other people, however, agree with us in not relishing the idea of having the Washington telegraph offices a free hunting ground for thieves, we advise them to help the Western Union to get the District of Columbia relieved from its present bad eminence, as the only place in the country where theft is not legally criminal Forwardings of men's fine goods from the Auburn shoe factories are very heavy, while factories running on women's goods are doing a better business than last month The total shipments are 2165 cases this week against 1976 cases last week.

The Lewiston Journal says: The police have recovered the articles stolen last week, from the Marston House They learned that a sale of cigars at a very low figure had been made in Portland. Deputy Marshal Metcalf went to that city, Thursday, and found the man to whom the cigars had been sold He stated that he purchased them of Henry H. Hersey, of Auburn Metcalf secured about 300 cigars and a lot of cigarettes, about half the quantity Mr Robertson lost. The Portland man bought them the next day after the robbery, and had been retailing them ever since On arriving home, Thursday evening, Officer Metcalf, with the assistance of Officer Maxwell, procured the arrest of Hersey, at his boarding house He confessed his guilt."

BULLS AND BEARS.

EXCITEMENT ON WALL STREET

NEW YORK, March 13 The Commercial says it was reported on Wall street to-day that Jay Gould and Vanderbilt held a meeting last night and agreed to instruct their brokers to buy up all the stock of the Lake Shore, Missouri, Pacific and Western Union Companies, which might be offered to-day at closing prices of Saturday The result of this has been a rise in all three of these stocks and it was said the bears had to a great extent been headed off All sorts of rumors had been started last week to bring these stocks down and it was found out the bears had called upon the stockholders of the Western Union to sell out to day, or they would lose heavily.

Damaging reports have also been circulated about Gould's action with the Missouri Pacific meeting held this forenoon, in the office of W. E Connor & Co, at which were then present some of the leading operators, and at which Jay Gould exhibited the unsigned certificates of the road to show they had not been put in circulation to the extent reported. A very bitter feeling existed to-day against those who had been circulating the false stories for the purpose of damaging stocks, and as many have been traced to the originators it was proposed to proceed against them under the recent law which makes such an offence a misdemeanor punishable with five years imprisonment.

Associate Justice.

WASHINGTON, March 13 The President sent to the Senate the name of Samuel B Batchford of New York, to be Associate Justice of the United States

FORTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS--First Sess or

Senate.

WASHINGTON March 13 The following reports were made from the Committees Mr Coke, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to provide for the allotment of lands in severalty to Indians and to extend o Indians the protection of the laws of the States and Territories, calendar Mr Saunders from the Committee on Territories, the House bill defining the qualifications of territorial delegates, in the House of Representatives, calendar Mr Hoar, from the Committee on Rules, for the appointment of a Committee on Public Expenditures to consist of seven Senators. Mr. Plumb, from the Committee on Appropriations, the House bill making an appropriation for the service of the Post Office Department, with amendments; calendar Mr Plumb gave notice that he would call up the post-office appropriation for consideration to morrow.

The Senate considered the Tariff Commission Bill

Mr Slater said the present bill would not accomplish the desired end The Protectionists now felt they had a good thing and were desirous of being let alone The Commission would be packed in advance with extreme protectionists, who would have but one object—the perpetuation of our present unjust tariff laws.

At the conclusion of Mr. Slater's remarks the Senate went into Executive session and at 5 ... adjourned

House

The Speaker announced the appointment of a select committee on woman suffrage, as follows Messrs Camp, White, Sherwin, Stone, Hepburn, Springer, Vance Muldrow and Shackleford

The Speaker presented a memorial of the Legislative Assembly of Utah, complaining of baseless and monstrous exaggerations under which the people of Utah are placed in jeopardy and threatened with the deprivation of the right of local self government, and that the aim of the persons who have started the rumors is to gain control of the wealthy and prosperous Territory of Utah and to manipulate its finances, that they have succeeded in arousing the ire of the clergy and through them the anger of many people against the large majority of the people of Utah, and urging that it is impolitic and unstatesmanlike to disarrange the political machinery of the commonwealth in an effort to punish the alleged offences of individuals, Congress is therefore asked to suspend action on Utah affairs until by a committee of investigation the facts are learned and a tangible foundation is laid for national proceedings, referred to the Judiciary Committee

The next business on the Speaker's table was the Senate bill to punish polygamy, on which on the 8th of March the point of order had been made by Mr Converse, that it must receive its first consideration in the Committee of the Whole, as it provided for an appropriation, but after considerable discussion the Speaker overruled the point of order

5 10 P M On motion of Mr Haskell further proceedings under the call were dispensed with and the House took a recess till 11 30 A M to morrow, when the bill will retain the position it has at present

A Republican caucus is announced to take place Wednesday evening.

THE POLITICAL GHOULS.

Trying to Dishonor Garfield's Grave.

WASHINGTON, March 13 The Star publishes the following "It is stated in a responsible quarter, that the letter written to ex Secretary Chase by Garfield touching Gen, Rosecrans, recently made public, was given out by Jacob W Schuckers, who now lives in New York city At the time Chase was Secretary of the Treasury Schuckers lived in Ohio and was appointed from that State by Chase to a $1,600 clerkship. Subsequently he became Chase's private Secretary. He also said he had other letters bearing on the removal of Rosecrans, written by Garfield, which will be made public at an early day.

The oyster pirates have reappeared in the Virginia waters, notwithstanding the wholesale capture of the fraternity by the Governor a week or two ago A battery of Whitworth guns has been mounted upon the banks of the Rappahannock in Matthews county, but the buccaneers manage to keep out of range and nimbly slip around the inlet and bay where they can not be reached.

The town of Mineral Wells, Texas has had a mushroom growth. The origin of the town dates back to last July, when water being scarce, a farmer began to sink a well After boring down 160 feet he struck water, which he began to use. His family were then sick, and after using the water a short time they began to recover. The neighbors also used it with happy results. These facts soon became known, and in less than two months over 500 people moved in and a town began to loom up. The town now boasts of a population of 2000, and still they come. The water has cured cancers, rheumatism and every form of malaria, and all the diseases produced by a deranged liver. The town is prettily located at the base of the mountains, with a beautiful undulating prairie stretching out towards the north. It is 75 miles from Dallas.

A sure Cure for Blind Bleeding, Itching and Ulcerated Piles has been discovered by Dr. William, (an Indian remedy) called Dr William's Indian Ointment. A single box has cured the worst chronic cases of 25 or 30 years standing. No one need suffer five minutes after applying this wonderful soothing medicine. Lotions, instruments and electuaries do more harm than good William's Ointment absorbs the tumors, allays the intense itching, (particularly at night after getting warm in bed,) acts as a poultice, gives instant and painless relief, and is prepared only for piles, itching of the private parts, and for nothing else.

Read what the Hon. J. M. Coffinberry of Cleveland, says about Dr. William's Indian Pile Ointment: I have used scores of Pile Cures, and it affords me pleasure to say that I have never found anything which gave such immediate and permanent relief as Dr. William's Indian Ointment.

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY We hope our readers will examine the statement of the New York Life Insurance Company printed in our columns this morning. The advance of this company in its thirty seven years of existence has been singularly steady and uniform. Its assets have increased during the last year from $43,000,000 to $47,000,000, and its surplus from $9 000,000 to $10,000,000. Of the $100,000,000 received in premiums since its organization in 1845, nearly one quarter of the sum has been paid in death losses and over $37,000,000 in endowments, annuities and surrendered policies. It has written in new insurance during the past year over $32 000 000 and the total amount of insurance in force January 1st, 1882, was $160, 000,000. Mr Bright, the agent for Bangor and vicinity, will be happy to explain the different forms of policies and to give all information connected therewith.

SWAN'S PUMP. A few days since, according to the Advertiser, a gentleman from Portland stopped over night at the Augusta House In the room where he slept was a bureau, into which he had occasion to look before he went to bed. In the bottom drawer he found a large quantity of illustrated handbills, setting forth the advantages of "Swan's Ventilating Force Pump." It was T. B. Swan's old room, which he occupied when a member of the Legislature. The handbill is about twelve by eighteen inches in size, and bears a spirited wood cut representing a large dwelling enveloped in flames. In the foreground is one of the famous pumps operated by a slim built young man, while another young fellow is absolutely flooding the building with an inch and a half stream, thrown sixty or eighty feet into the air. Neither of the men seemed to be working very hard, although one would naturally suppose that considerable muscle would be required to lift so large a stream so high. The hand bill sets forth that Mr Swan, after spending years of hard toil, finally invented the wonderful pump after an outlay of thousands of dollars. It is claimed that it acts like an ordinary pump until a hose is attached to the nozzle when it at once becomes double acting and capable of throwing a stream sixty or eighty feet from the end of the hose An accompanying circular sets forth that the right to manufacture and sell the pump in any town can be bought for one dollar Swan offers to supply the pumps for $4 each, claiming that he can make them very cheap, because he has so large a factory The recipient of the circular is urged to send money at once for a town right and sample pump.

THE TEWKSBURY CASE

Report of the Visiting Committee of the Insane Hospital

Executive Councillors, Frederick Robie and Joseph T Hinckley and Mrs. C. R Whidden who constitute the Official Board of Visitors to the Insane Hospital at Augusta, have made report of their investigation of the charges of brutal treatment of Mr. Norris M. Tewksbury, of this city published in the Bangor Commercial.

The Board report that they visited Bangor and obtained from Mr. Tewksbury substantially the same complaints published, and they have no doubt that he sincerely believes what he states. He affirms that on the day he left Bangor he "was as rational as he ever was and knew what he was about," and charges that he was kicked in a cruel manner shortly after his arrival at the Hospital by E. J. Williams, one of the assistants, but that with this exception he was treated with kindness and courtesy. The Board then state the testimony of the persons who accompanied Mr. Tewksbury to Augusta, of the physicians of the Hospital and others affirming that he was violently insane, attesting the excellent character of Williams and denying all of Mr. Tewksbury's charges. They sum up the report (which we shall print in full hereafter) as follows:

The Visiting Committee wrote letters to the attending physician of Mr. Tewksbury, for necessary information, but did not receive any reply.

They also requested the name of the individual who furnished the corroborating evidence that appears in the Commercial, the editor having volunteered to furnish the same; but not receiving any reply we are unable to determine whether the same is worthy of any credence.

The several statements that have been made clearly refute what has been said by Mr. Tewksbury. There appears to be a general denial of the charges made by Tewksbury. There can be no doubt but that Mr. Tewksbury, in his confused state of mind, was in error on many immaterial points, and it is logical to infer that there may be a corresponding error in the essential charges. The Visiting Committee are aware that in making any investigation much of the evidence for the defence must come from the party attacked, and, therefore, there may be cases where the truth may be omitted. In the case in question, we are of the opinion that there are no grounds for apprehension that Mr. Tewksbury was ill treated at the Hospital. The facts, evidence and logic refute such a statement.

We, therefore, desire to exonerate the Hospital from any unjust criticism that these last charges have occasioned.

FERRY WE!

Republican Mayor Elected!

BY OVER A THOUSAND PLURALITY!

Brown And Bass Bounced!

STRICKLAND CARRIES SIX WARDS!

WHOLE CITY GOVERNMENT REPUBLICAN!

The Railroad Proposition Approved!

Although the weather was quite unpleasant and the travelling bad yesterday, quite a heavy vote was brought out at the municipal election, and there was considerable activity, but not much excitement about the polls. Early in the day it became manifest that among the rank and file of the Democratic party there was a serious revolt against the candidacy of "Spigot Reformer" Brown, put forward by John B. Foster and endorsed by J. P. Bass, and before noon it was apparent that the "Poor Man's Friend" was doomed to overwhelming defeat. He was cut right and left by Democratic voters in all parts of the city, two of the three Democratic Wards, giving decisive majorities against him, while he only obtained two majority in Ward Two Tickets were distributed in each Ward bearing the name of that sterling citizen and staunch Republican, Ivory W. Coombs, Esq, for Mayor, and one hundred and twenty-one of them were cast in all. The use of his name was without any authority from Mr Coombs who voted the regular Republican ticket as usual, and we could learn only that the tickets were said to be put forward by the temperance committee whose nomination Mr. Woodbury declined The vote however, does not represent the strength of any specific movement, as quite a number of Democrats voted that ticket merely as a convenient method of cutting Brown.

The vote on the Railroad question was light, but the proposition submitted was approved by a majority of 389 The following are the detailed results of the election:

VOTE FOR MAYOR

	Strickland	Brown	Coombs	Scat.	Total
Ward 1	161	73	8	—	242
Ward 2	165	175	8	—	348

ENTERTAINMENT IN GRAND ARMY HALL The Ladies Relief Corps gave a supper and entertainment in Grand Army Hall last evening. The weather was far from propitious but large numbers breasted the storm and the spacious hall was filled with a large and merry party. A superior supper was served to which ample justice was done by those present. A literary and musical entertainment then followed. The programme was as follows Piano duet by Miss Cutter and Master Downes; song, "Where is Heaven?" by Miss Kerr, reading, by Miss Low, dialogue, "Have You Heard the News," by Mrs. Patterson, Mrs. Cushman, Mrs Winslow and Mrs. Downes; song by Miss Henry; piano solo by Mrs. Winslow and song "Wandering Minstrel" by Mr. E. E. Holden. The several selections were greeted by the audience with enthusiastic applause. Miss Low was encored and also was Mr. Holden. The latter gentleman when called out sweetly sang "Tapping at the Garden Gate." After the completion of the exercises, the time was devoted to social converse and dancing, Mr. Jones furnishing the music, and the pleasant occasion did not draw to a close till a late hour. The ladies of the Relief Corps are to be congratulated upon the highly successful management of the affair.

A GREAT BLACKMAILING SCHEME.

The Proprietor of the Parker House the Intended Victim.

[From the Boston Journal, March 10.]

The Central office detectives may well be proud of an arrest which they made on Wednesday afternoon after five months of persistent toil in the face of apparently insurmountable obstacles, for their labors have resulted not only in freeing from mortal anxiety one of the best-known citizens of Boston, but in placing behind the bars a blackmailer whose versatility in genius and whose fertility in expedient have rarely, if, indeed, ever been paralleled. The gentleman marked as a victim is none other than Mr. Harvey D. Parker, the proprietor of the hotel which bears his name; the person who is charged with the crime is one Charles C. Cunningham, and the inspectors of police who are entitled to the honor of hunting the rascal down are Captain Ham, and Messrs. Skelton, Hanscom, Houghton and Knox. The story of the long search would, if given in full, occupy a page of a newspaper; besides the detectives modestly decline to detail the various expedients to which they resorted in the last stages of the case and which, after most of the arts of their profession had failed, were crowned with what they believe to be perfect success. The attack on Mr. Parker does not differ except that it was more skillfully contrived and executed from that made a few months ago on Mr. Jay Gould; it sprang from the same vague motive, and had money for its object, and when one sees the elaborate measures which were taken to accomplish the end and to screen the blackmailer the wonder grows at its final failure.

THE FIRST LETTER.

About five months ago Mr. Parker received the following letter, by mail, at his residence, No. 111 Boylston street:

Boston, ———.

Mr. Parker: About eighteen years ago I was convicted of a certain act committed at your hotel and received a long sentence in State Prison. You could at that time, if you felt disposed, have been the means of getting for me a lighter sentence; but you did not. That's all right. I came out of prison a short time since, after spending the best of my life behind the grates, and have tried and tried again to get an honest living, but failed. It is only natural for me to ask why is this, and I blame you and your hotel for my misfortunes. There were mitigating circumstances in my case, and you should have interfered in my behalf, and perhaps to-day I might be well off instead of in this desperate condition. Now there is nothing left for me to do but go back behind the grates, and I propose to do so in this way. My first thought was to go to your hotel some night, when the wind was blowing pretty fresh, and hire a room and then set fire and burn it to the ground. But that would not give me satisfaction enough. For it would not take me behind the grates, unless I gave myself up. My plan now is to ask you for twenty-five thousand dollars, not a cent less—$25,000—and you and I will be friends forever. This is all the money I shall ever want. If you don't give it to me, then I shall go behind the grates again in this way; I am going to shoot you. I shall not kill you, because I don't want to swing for it. I simply want this amount of money to get away with, or I want a place to board such as I had so long. I am a good shot, and will shoot you at short range in the face. It will only disfigure you; I won't kill you. Perhaps it may cause the loss of an eye, but I will, for my own sake, be careful not to kill you. Then, after the shooting, will give myself up. You see I am playing a dangerous game to get $25,000, but I am going to play it. It is little enough for the time I was in prison, and don't you misunderstand me when I say I will have it or leave my mark on you. The worst that can happen to me is to go back, which I had rather do than live as I am now. Now don't keep too dark or try to avoid me, because I know all your movements, and if I see anything suspicious I am liable to touch off your hotel to begin with, then carry out the rest of my plan, because I have sworn to have that money; and, if I can't have it, then a crack at you and I return to my old quarters. And I feel that I owe you a crack, because here I am, a good clean looking man, yet incapacitated from a long term in prison from earning a living.

Now, then, I think I have explained everything. It is for you to say whether you will consent to my terms or take chances with fire and a sting from a navy revolver in the face. If you consent to my terms you will get $25,000 in bills, not too large or too small, and place them into a small leather bag or satchel, lock it and throw away the key; put a label on it and mark it Scott Munroe—or remember the name so that I can send a man or boy, who, by the way, will be innocent parties, who will be led by me to believe that the bag contains no great valuables, but merely a light shirt and toilet articles. This will be taken to another innocent party and left for me to call for. I will send my messenger for this bag to your private residence same as I have this letter. So I want you to have all fixed as I have written above, and hand to my messenger when he calls, which will be in about ten days or thereabouts from date of this letter. I give you all this time so that you can consider it and do as you d—n please. I will carry out my side of this contract, sink or swim. You can't catch me, I'm too old a bird, and I'm going to keep a sharp lookout for the time to come. The amounts mentioned puts me out of the way, or the revolver puts me out of the way. It is for you to say which. Don't misunderstand me or make any mistake.

CHARLES MUNROE.

It will be in the evening when my messenger will call at your private house for the bag in about ten or twelve days from now.

OUTWITTING THE DETECTIVES.

This precious epistle was immediately handed to Chief Inspector Ham, who detailed Inspectors Skelton and Hanscom on the case, but nothing in the slightest degree indicative of the rascal's whereabouts or his identity was learned. Promptly on the twelfth day after the letter above given Mr. Parker received a second communication from the blackmailer, like its predecessor, full of threats, which informed him that a messenger would call at his house on that evening between 8 and 10 o'clock for the precious satchel. Inclosed was a receipt filled out for $25,000. If the rascal had been one of ordinary shrewdness his capture after this would have been an easy matter, and Inspectors Skelton, Hanscom and Houghton, who, with a boy, were in waiting about Mr. Parker's house on the evening in question, not knowing with whom they had to deal, thought that their prey was within their grasp. A satchel had been prepared for the occasion, and when, promptly at 8 o'clock, a colored boy of ten or twelve years rang the bell and presented a note, it was given him and he hurried away. The officers followed the urchin, who ran like a hunted criminal, dodging here and there, and making pursuit very difficult, until he reached the vacant lot near Smith's organ factory on Warren avenue and Tremont street, where he was allowed to deposit the bag. He was then taken in custody. A few words of conversation showed his entire innocence. He said that he met a man on Tremont street, who asked him to do an errand, and walked with him quite a long way instructing him in the part he was to play. The stranger told him that he had been gambling and wanted to get his bag without going to his friend's house, so that he might take the night train for New York. The boy was warned that people might follow him and might even claim to be detectives, but he must not give up the bag to any one, but must leave it in the place described above. While they were walking they reached Paine Hall, and the stranger, stepping in the doorway, wrote a note to Mr. Parker and gave it the boy with $3 for his trouble, and then left him to carry out the enterprise. The officers, after hearing the story, and getting the boy's name and residence, allowed him to go, while they remained and watched for the blackmailer to come for the bag. But he came not; he was too sharp to be caught in that way.

Mr. Parker continued to receive letters from "Scott Munroe," who in one of them informed him that he might advertise under the head "Information wanted" whenever he wished to communicate with him. The police, it is needless to say, promptly adopted his advice, but their only reward was more letters of the old stamp. These were all in the same handwriting, but in different styles of envelopes, so that one means of detection failed at once. Furthermore, there is no way in Boston, as in New York, of telling in what section of the city a letter is posted, and, besides, there are not officers enough to guard every letter box; so that the method employed in New York to detect Jay Gould's blackmailer was out of the question in this case.

About a month after the adventure just described, the blackmailer, having made a similar arrangement, sent a boy to the Parker House for the bag and the golden contents. The officers were there also and followed the messenger (not the one who officiated before) across the Common at the top of their speed to the Tremont street side of the lot mentioned in the former case. The fellow ran like a deer, frequently doubling on himself, and almost throwing the pursuing party off the scent, but finally they located the bag and lay low to await developments. The boy, not being met by his employer, after waiting awhile took the satchel and returned home. Here the exceptional shrewdness of the mysterious writer was manifested. A new boy was awaiting the return of the first messenger with a note from "Munroe," telling him to take the bag to the Adams House. The bag in the hands of its new custodian was taken to this hotel and deposited in the cloak room, and the officers sat down to watch the hotel. The watch continued twenty-four hours, but, as usual, without avail. In the meantime, about 7 o'clock on the following morning, an entirely new messenger, who may be designated as No. 3, appeared at the house of No. 1 with an inquiry from the blackmailer for his bag. No. 1 had gone to his work, but his mother—an unsuspecting soul—replied: "Why, the bag was taken to the Adams House, as he directed, and the detectives followed it." If she had omitted the last clause all would have been well, but this message, when taken to the blackmailer, was evidence to him that the police were close after him. He therefore fought shy of the Adams House. Within half a dozen hours Mr. Parker received a letter from the blackmailer, congratulating him on his success and complimenting the detectives whom he had in his employ.

The threatening letters continued. Finally, after five or six weeks, the fellow wrote that he had done negotiating, and had made up his mind to kill Mr. Parker anyway. It was his "destiny" to kill him, as it was the destiny of the illustrious Guiteau to murder Gen. Garfield, and no more letters should be written on the subject. About this time Guiteau was convicted, and this seems to have affected the blackmailer in a new way. He began writing as "a lady friend of Mr. Munroe," signing "T. J. M." In these letters she (he) said that "Munroe" was insane and was bound to kill Mr. Parker, and that as she (he) loved him she could not bear to think of his death on the scaffold, it would be better, therefore, if Mr. Parker would leave the city for a while. Communication with "T. J. M." was opened through advertisements, and, though the officers knew that the letters were the work of the man they were after, they could learn no clue of his identity. In one letter the supposed woman pleaded with Mr. Parker to show the letter to his wife, as she could appreciate the laceration which the writer's heart was undergoing at the prospect of her lover's death on the gallows. He was also besought to refrain from opening his front door or from admitting peddlers or strangers, for he was liable to be shot at any moment. In another letter it was stated that "Munroe" in his ravings talked of destroying the Parker House with dynamite. Indeed, every effort that ingenuity could suggest was made to frighten the intended victim into parting with his money, but no impression was made on his common-sense view of the case and of the cowardly nature of the blackmailer. The latest device was a very neat one. Mr. Parker received two letters, signed by "Friend," stating that the writer had been given $25 by a stranger to assist him in burning the Parker House, but that he hadn't the heart to do it. The description of the bad man was given, so that he could be arrested if seen in the hotel. It is needless to say that the writer in this instance was the same unknown author who had been writing all these months.

THE ARREST AT LENGTH ACCOMPLISHED.

The work of the inspectors during this time was unremitting. They felt that the rascal must be identified by his handwriting, which he had made no effort to disguise. They had a description of him from the various boys whom he had employed to do his errands, and it is safe to say that every man in Boston, who bears any resemblance to the person wanted, has been under a sort of semi-surveillance during the past three or four months, while it is a fact that letters or other papers in the handwriting of more than four hundred men have been obtained for comparison with those which Mr. Parker has been receiving. How they finally picked Cunningham out of the multitude they decline to say, but the specimens of his handwriting which have been obtained are pronounced by experts to be identical with that of the threatening letters. The arrest was made at 4 P. M. on Wednesday. The prisoner, who is a good-looking man of 43, dark and portly, and apparently not in the least deranged, stoutly denies his guilt, but the four boys who have innocently shared in the attempts on Mr. Parker's purse fully identify him as their mysterious employer. It has been learned that eighteen years ago he was discharged from his position as head waiter at the Parker House because of slowness or awkwardness, or something of the sort, and that since that time and until within two years, instead of being in State Prison, he has been in the hotel business in various parts of the West and Southwest, particularly in Salt Lake City, and that he has a family in Chicago. Mr. Parker never appeared against him in court, and never had any ill-will toward him. Indeed he had forgotten his existence until the arrest was made, and is at a loss to imagine why the fellow should have selected him as the victim of a blackmailing scheme. Cunningham is under $5,000 bonds for examination on the 16th inst.

Stones in the Kidney's and Bladder Expelled—Long Suffering of one of Troy's Best People—A Lucky Man.

It is by no means a strange thing that Dr. Kennedy should have received the following letter. By reading it you will see in one minute why:

TROY, N. Y., April 8th, 1880.

Dr. D. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y.:

DEAR SIR—Until within a recent date I had for several years suffered greatly from gravel, called by the doctors the Brick-dust Sediment. For about a year past this sediment has not passed off in the usual quantity, but has accumulated, causing me untold pain. Having heard of "Kennedy's Favorite Remedy" I tried it in my case, and after using about one and one-half bottles, I voided a stone from the Bladder, of an oval shape, 7-16 of an inch long, and rough on its surface. I send you the largest piece that you may see of what it is composed. Since then I have felt no pain. I now consider myself cured, and cannot express my thankfulness and gratitude for so signal a deliverance from a terrible disease. You have my consent to use this letter, should you wish it to, for the benefit of other sufferers.

Yours truly,

LETTER CARRIERS.

All letters are delivered free by carriers when addressed to street and number. People should inform their correspondents of the above and have their letters addressed accordingly.

Persons leaving their address at the General Delivery can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number on, and they will be delivered earlier than if the same is put on at the office. Carriers make two deliveries daily, the first trip supplying the extremes of their routes.

Collections are made morning and evening in season for important mails.

Holidays the Carriers' Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 9½ to 10½ A. M., and from 7½ to 8 P. M. Sundays from 9 to 9½ A. M.

Any irregularities in the Carriers' department should be reported to the office.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and request to return, across the left hand upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, (samples of which may be seen at the Cashier's window) when ordered in lots of not less than 500.

A request for the return of a letter to the writer, if unclaimed within thirty days, or less, written or printed, with the writer's name, post office and State, across the left end of the envelope, on the face side, will be complied with.

The public are earnestly recommended to procure Stamped envelopes with printed return request, as the expense is less, and letters thus endorsed, if not delivered to the person addressed, are returned to the writer free of charge.

First class envelopes of above furnished at $22.20 per thousand.

Stamps cut from Stamped Envelopes cannot be used to prepay postage. The use of such Stamps is punishable by a fine of fifty dollars.

Stamped Envelopes, spoiled in directing, are redeemed at this office.

DOMESTIC POSTAGE.

FIRST CLASS.

All Letters must be Prepaid—Letters for the Mails in the United States, three cents the half ounce or single rate. City letters, two cents half ounce or single rate.

SECOND CLASS.

Newspapers.

All regular newspapers must be prepaid at the office of publication, at the rate of two cents per pound for each issue. The same law applies to dealers.

County papers free, except to letter carrier offices, i. e. papers coming to this office, if published in County, are subject to postage. Daily papers published in County, if delivered by carrier, one cent each, to be prepaid by stamps.

Postage to Canada—Same as in the States on letters and papers, pre-payment compulsory; merchandise limited to 8 oz., postage 10 cents.

THIRD CLASS.

Postage One Cent for Two Ounces.

Books (printed and blank), transient newspapers and periodicals, circulars, and other matter wholly in print, proof sheets and corrected proof sheets and manuscript copy accompanying the same, hand bills, posters, chromo lithographs, engravings, envelopes with printing thereon, heliotypes, lithographs, photographic and stereoscopic views with title written thereon, printed blanks and printed cards.

FOURTH CLASS.

Postage One Cent for each Ounce.

Blank cards, card board and other flexible material, flexible patterns, letter envelopes and letter paper without printing thereon, merchandise, models, ornamental paper, sample cards, samples of ores, metals, mineals, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions, drawings, plans, designs, ornamental paintings in oil or water colors and any other matter not included in first, second or third classes, and which is not in its form or nature liable to destroy, deface or otherwise damage the contents of the mail bag or harm the person of any one engaged in the postal service.

Upon matter of third or fourth class the sender may write his own name or address with the word "from," without extra charge for postage.

Third and fourth class matter may be registered same as first class, on payment of the register fee of 10 cents.

ADVERTISED LETTERS.

All letters remaining in the office are advertised on Monday of each week. If not claimed in ONE MONTH thereafter, they are then forwarded to the Dead Letter office.

MONEY ORDERS.

Especial attention is called to the Money Order system, as a safe and cheap method of transmitting small sums through the mails. Orders are issued in sums of not more than fifty dollars. Larger amounts can be transmitted to the same person, at the same time, by additional orders.

RATES.

On orders not exceeding $15,	10 cents
Over $15 and not exceeding $30,	15 cents
Over $30 and not exceeding $40,	20 cents
Over $40 and not exceeding $50,	25 cents

Money Orders can also be obtained on England, Ireland, Scotland, Wales, Switzerland and German States.

Never put Money in a Letter—Always Procure a Money Order.

If money is to be remitted, a Postal Money Order should be obtained. If upon points where there is no Money Order Office, then the letter should be Registered. Money should never be enclosed in an ordinary letter.

Office Hours—From 8 A. M. to 6 P. M.

REGISTRY DEPARTMENT.

All valuable letters should be Registered, unless a Money Order is obtained. Under the present system of Registration, letters are transmitted with perfect safety.

Letters may be Registered by paying postage in full and a Registration fee in stamps, for—

United States,	10 cents
Great Britain and Ireland, and all Countries having a postal treaty with the United States,	10 cents

Office Hours—From 8 A. M. to 6 P. M.

CAREFULLY PREPARED, THOROUGHLY TESTED, ACCEPTABLE AND RELIABLE.

The Phosphates of the Wheat are its most valuable food property, and are, when properly prepared, the most acceptable nutriment with which to build up the system.

The Blood, Brain and Nerves are the forces which bear the strain of every day work and life, and in order to save sickness it is wise to BUILD FOR HEALTH.

Wheat Bitters are prepared, not by fermentation but by solution and are richest in the Phosphates, while the starch and impure matter are eliminated. These make in themselves a basis, to which is added the best and choicest medicinal qualities, necessary to make it a tonic and bitter. It is at once healthful, pleasant to the taste and must not be confounded with the thousand and one cheap alcoholic bitters which are sold as cure-alls. Medicine is doubly effective when used with food, so as to nourish while it corrects.

Sold by druggists, $1.00 per bottle.
